NEWTON—There's no better time than now to begin family research.

Catawba County Library System is offering a free beginner's workshop for anyone interested in family research. The session, at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, May 10 at Southwest Branch Library, will be conducted by Librarian Kim Wetmore, who has both training and years of practical experience in genealogy. She'll recommend the questions to ask, information to collect, where documents can be obtained and how they should be organized. She'll discuss both print and on-line sources.

Pre-registration is not necessary.

Southwest Branch Library is located on Hwy. 127 South, near the Old German Schnitzel Haus restaurant in Mountain View. Catawba County Library System also includes the Main Library at 115 W. C Street in Newton plus Maiden, Claremont, Conover, Sherrills Ford and St. Stephens branch libraries.
